Dear Sir:—

The enclosed Bank notes represent the confederate money used in the Southern States during our (American) Civil War, and in looking over and sifting old documents—which are apt to accumulate in a household I found these which might be of interest to the association of which you are the custodian. One of them and one which I found at first I sent to Mr. Hardinge Scholle the curator of the Museum of the City of New York and I mailed to you that organization as a present to it.

curiosity but he returned it saying it was not a relic of New York City and not in accordance with the designation of that institution. He believed it appropriate for the Organization of which you are the Guardian and hence this explanation. I therefore present it to the American Numismatic Society together with the second one first discovered. You will probably know more about them than I do. Trusting that they may be acceptable I am
